

THE TRAITOR CHIEF AT LARGE.

From the N. Y. Evening Post. Our telegraphic columns yesterday announced that Jefferson Davis had been put to the experience of a term in Libby Prison, where, in the days of his treason, he had been tortured to death better than himself, has been suffered to go at large, without even the form of an inquiry into his conduct. The clause of the Constitution which defines treason against the country, and the laws of Congress which prescribe the proper punishment of treason, are made a dead letter. For all that appears, the crime of treason is henceforth as safe to commit in the United States as perjury is in New York city. This is the construction which is forced upon the case by the fact that the first use which the bonded traitor purposes to make of his enlargement is to go at once to a foreign country, beyond the reach of our laws. It would be some satisfaction if we should find that he has himself a sufficient comprehension of what is due to his country's laws to remain beyond their reach, thus making the only alternative to his present position a voluntary exile. It might make a better inheritance for his posterity, if he should leave behind him this testimony to the criminality of treason and the successfulness of the treasoner.

As he leaves the country with the conviction of his bondsmen, it is plain that they consider the baitment a liberty of form, a farce—and that they have no expectation of being called upon to pay the hundred thousand dollars, as the ransom of a traitor. Their desire to sign the bond is only for the sake of having their names enrolled for posterity as those who gladly did all in their power to procure his exemption from the penalty of the law. Let them have their reward. To Mr. Greeley was accorded the proud satisfaction of putting his name at the head of the list of bondsmen. He could not do so, as the culmination of his long-continued efforts in behalf of the Rebellion. It will compensate all his disappointments in regard to the payment for the slaves, the surrender of the South to the Rebellion, the peace negotiations in Canada, the permanent recognition of the Government at Richmond, its continued do what he would, but he has gloried in the overthrow of law by the force of the Rebels, he has achieved its practical abolition by the voluntary act of our own officials. We will not rob him of his laurels, nor anticipate the verdict of posterity as to his merits. Mr. Davis, as we must now call him, is to take a "progress" through the North, in the enjoyment of his freedom, and doubtless under the escort of his Northern friends, his bondsmen, and others. The hand-shaking, the congratulations, the triumphant cheers by which he was surrounded at Richmond, as he stepped forth from the custody of the law, are to be repeated, we suppose, at Baltimore, Philadelphia, and New York. And the sky overhead shall echo to all nations the proclamation that "Thus it shall be done, and the man who has secured the United States advance to honor for his treason."

THE CHAMELEON.

CHANGES OF COLOR AND MANNER OF TAKING FOOD. Mr. Couch, an English naturalist, had excellent opportunities for observing the changes of color and modes of taking food in the chameleon. The one in his possession measured ten inches in length, of which the tail was four and a half inches. Its eyes were black and lively, and the pupil deeply seated in a hole scarcely larger than would be made with a pin. The movement of each eye was independent of the opposite, and they were rarely directed at one object except when the creature was intent on seizing prey. The movements were very slow and deliberate, especially when on the ground. Its color was subject to continual change, but if the creature retained the same hue for ten minutes together can be said to possess one which may be termed its own, it was dusky brown, or almost black, nearly approaching to the darkness of soot. The light was of more importance to it than the heat, and when basking in the sun, even the mouth was opened to receive the influence. A dingy black was its common color when thus enjoying itself.

Both sides did not always adopt the same colors, for while the one towards the light was sometimes a dark-brown, the other side would perhaps be light-yellow, with white spots. On one occasion, when the stick on which it rested was touched gently, without waking it, it became instantly covered all over with minute brown spots. On another, when the color was altogether yellow, a book was held so as to cast a shade on the anterior part of the body, while a candle was held within four inches of the hindmost portion; and then presently the illuminated part changed to a light brown, while the shaded portion remained as before, and when the screen was removed the exact limit of the shade was visible.

The general belief in its faculty to live without food or drink, and to subsist wholly upon air, was proved to be incorrect. It required water about once in a fortnight, and was very fond of flies. It not only took all that came in its way, but would seize them as fast as children would bring them; and it even became so familiar with the act as to take them repeatedly from the hand. It was thus easy to measure the distance in which it was able to dart its tongue in seizing its prey, which was found to be six inches—or rather more than the length of its body. The fly would adhere to the tongue by means of a tenacious mucus with which it was covered. On the approach of cold weather its activity was greatly lessened, and it slept a greater portion of the time. The sunshine would always reanimate it, but artificial heat produced little effect. Its color was varied, and when at last it was found dead, the general hue of its surface was dark.

AUSTRIAN COURT EMBROIDERY IN THE SEVENTEENTH CENTURY.—A very curious regulation of the Chamberlain's office, bearing date 1624, touching the conduct to be observed by cadets when they were invited to dine with an Austrian Archduke, runs as follows:—His Imperial and Royal Highness having designed to invite several officers to dine at his table, and having had frequent opportunities of observing that the greater part of these officers behaved with the strictest courtesy and good breeding towards each other, and generally conducted themselves like true and worthy cavaliers, nevertheless deems it advisable that the less experienced cadets should have their attention directed to the following code of regulations:—

- 1. To present their respects to his Imperial and Royal Highness on their arrival; to come neatly dressed, coat and boots, and not enter the room in a half-drunken condition.
2. At table they are not to tilt up their chairs or rock themselves therein, nor stretch their legs at full length.
3. Nor drink at each mouthful, for if they do, they will get tipsy too soon; nor empty the goblet to the extent of more than one-half after each dish, and they should wipe the mouth and mustaches in a cleanly manner.
4. Neither are they to thrust their hands into the dishes, nor to throw the bones under the table.
5. Nor to lick their fingers, nor to expatiate in their plates, nor to wipe their noses on the tablecloth.
6. Nor to drink so beastially as to fall from their chairs and make themselves incapable of walking straight.

—Marshal Forey is dangerously ill. —General Motke, who planned the famous eight-day campaign last year, has been appointed personal adjutant of the King of the Belgians during his Majesty's sojourn in Berlin.

AMUSEMENTS.

MUSICAL FUND HALL.—The third grand concert of the series for the benefit of the Masonic Asylum Fund of New York will be given Thursday evening, May 16. It will be one of the most pleasant affairs of the season. Among the distinguished artists to appear on that occasion we observe the following:—Mrs. Marie Abbot, soprano; Miss Agnes Perry, soprano; Miss Florence Rice, contralto; Mr. J. Ernest Fering, tenor; and Mr. Frederick Steins, baritone. The programme arranged for the occasion is very attractive, embracing some beautiful ballads and many of the choice works of the greatest composers. Our readers should not forget that each ticket to the concert has attached a numbered coupon, guaranteeing the holder to a chance in one of the greatest distributions of real estate and valuable jewelry ever made in this country. This entire scheme is got up for a charitable purpose, and has received the sanction of Robert D. Holmes, M. W., Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of New York, of Free and Accepted Masons. Our readers will perceive that by purchasing tickets for this concert, they will be enjoying a pleasure while conferring a blessing.

AMERICAN ACADEMY OF MUSIC.—As we predicted, the announcement that Mrs. F. W. Lander's concert to give her great historical impersonation of "Queen Elizabeth" at our splendid Opera House, is already creating quite a sensation. Mrs. Lander will appear in her great role on five evenings and one afternoon, commencing on Tuesday, the 21st instant. The sale of tickets for these performances will commence to-morrow morning at Trumpler's music store, Seventh and Chestnut streets, where seats may be secured for the entire engagement. Mrs. Lander's success in drawing to her support some of the most distinguished artists of our city, and we have every reason to believe that the success of the enterprise is certain. The cast of the play will be found in another column.

MR. WOLFFSOHN'S FAREWELL CONCERT.—This entertainment will take place at the Academy of Music to-morrow evening. It will be one of the most brilliant affairs of the season. Mr. Wolffsohn will be assisted by Mme. Gazzaniga, famous Italian prima donna assoluta; Mr. Theodore Habeman, the favorite German tenor; Mr. Wenzel Kopta, the distinguished violinist, and the Mendelssohn Society, of Philadelphia, with their great chorus of three hundred voices. Tickets for this concert may be obtained at Trumpler's and at the Academy of Music. Seats may be secured without extra charge.

BENEFIT OF MR. CHARLES BARTON HILL.—The friends of this favorite young actor in Philadelphia have arranged a complimentary testimonial benefit, to be given at the Academy of Music, on next Wednesday afternoon, the 23rd instant, for the purpose of replacing, in Mr. Hill's splendid wardrobe, destroyed by the fire at the Winter Garden Theatre, New York. Mr. Hill needs no special recommendation in this locality; and as the entertainment will be a most attractive one, we have no doubt that the Academy will be crowded on the occasion. Reserved seats may be obtained at Trumpler's, Seventh and Chestnut streets.

NEW CHESTNUT STREET THEATRE.—Performances here this week are given in aid of the fund for the relief of the starving people of the South. Miss Julia Daly appears this evening in two of her most popular characters, supported by all the company talents. In the conclusion of each entertainment a number of valuable gifts will be distributed among the audience, including sets of cottage furniture, silver tea service, butter dishes, card baskets, and gold-hand china tea service. The distribution is perfectly fair, and the names of the lucky ticket-holders, on Monday night will be found in another column.

WALNUT STREET THEATRE.—Miss Susan Denin will appear this evening in Boucault's thrilling drama of Joséphine Darné, founded on Sir Walter Scott's celebrated novel, entitled "The Heart of Mid-Lothian." Miss Denin's acting in her part is powerful, affecting, and artistic, and the applause each evening is gratefully awarded by large and fashionable audiences. Miss Denin is supported by Miss Annie Graham, Miss Effie Gernon, and the favorites of the company.

ARCH STREET THEATRE.—This establishment is given over to a carnival of fun. Mr. Dan Bryant appearing every evening in two of his favorite characters, in which he gives songs and dances, and is supported by the entire corps dramatique of the theatre. On Friday evening Mr. Bryant takes a benefit, when a glorious bill is promised.

AMERICAN THEATRE.—The usual attractive entertainment will be given by the grand corps de ballet and Ethiopian and dramatic troupes this evening.

CONCERT HALL.—Mr. Charles Levi announces that Hartz, the illusionist, will commence a brief engagement next Monday evening, with marvellous success. Hartz is the only man who can perform successfully such tricks as the human head floating in the air, instantaneous growth of flowers, and the devil's hat. And we advise all who love fun and magic to go and see Hartz, the Illusionist.

ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—The Lubin Brothers appear this evening in their wonderful conjurations, including the beautiful Andropogoni and the Lilyphant Family. Matinees on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons.

THE FAMILY RESORT.—Caricross & Dixey's great star troupe of the world will appear in one of their Ethiopian songs this evening, with new songs, dances, burlesques, and plantation scenes.

A new caricaturist, by the name of Gill, has appeared in Paris. His drawings appear in La Lune. Under the French law of libel, few persons will venture to publish a caricature without the consent of the parties, lest they should be prosecuted for an attack upon the "consideration" due to every citizen. Accordingly, Gill's caricatures of Lachard, Knille de Girardin, Jules Favre, etc., are accompanied by lithographed reproductions, which add greatly to the value of the pictures, of letters authorizing the publication of caricatures. La Lune lately applied to M. de Lamartine for permission to publish a caricature of him. The poet wrote the following answer, which seems to show an extraordinary sensitiveness:—

"However great my gratitude for the biographical article of which you speak, I cannot authorize in my person a travesty of the human face, which, although it does not offend the man, would be an offense against Nature, and turn humanity into derision. I have already told you, and I now repeat it, that my consent would be false magnanimity, which would countenance in regard to others a like outrage in the dignity of God's creatures. I will not be accomplice of such a deed. I told you when you did me the honor to call upon me that my face was common property; just as the sun and the river; by that, such as I am, I will not voluntarily profane it, for it represents a man, and is a present from God."

P. S.—I fully authorize you to publish this letter. —The most edifying reading at the "Hub" just now is the published returns of the incomes of "the solid man of Boston," in which, after all the deductions allowed by law, some names known beyond the periphery appear. Thus the Hon. Robert C. Winthrop returns an income of $7065; Harvey W. Parker, of the famous Parker House, $59,045; M. M. Ballou, once the publisher of the only illustrated weekly in Boston, and now a builder of fine stores, $14,335; Stephen N. Stockwell, manager of the Boston Journal, and possessor of an interest in its profits, $5,150; Peleg W. Chandler, one of the ablest lawyers, and one of the proprietors of the Daily Advertiser, $28,090; Charles F. Dunbar, editor, and also one of the proprietors of the Daily Advertiser, $41,250; Oliver Wendell Holmes, known to every lover of American literature, $5594; E. P. Whipple, the essayist, $4300; James T. Fields, the poet and book publisher (Ticknor & Fields), $21,500; B. P. Dutton, the pos-essor of the old stand of Ticknor & Fields on Washington street, $2231; T. O. H. P. Burnham, of the antiquarian bookstore, $2951; Rev. A. A. Miner, $10,957; Rev. George W. Bigden, senior pastor of the Old South, $2976; Rev. Edward N. Kirk, $6137; Rev. Rollin H. Neale, $1427; Mayor Norcross, $55,403; Ex-Mayor Lincoln, $4090; Harvey Welch, the leader of the House of Representatives, $2604; and Avery Plumer, one of the newly elected directors of the Western Railroad on the part of the State, $14,403.
